North Penn Parents Special
Education Council Presents....

"A Pathway to Success for Students with Social Skill Needs"

Wednesday, February 20, 2013 – 7:00pm

North Penn Educational Services Center
401 East Hancock Street, Lansdale, PA 19446

Helping children with social learning needs connect socially to the world around them can be overwhelming for parents and educators.

Speaker Ryan Wexelblatt will demonstrate a proven method to teach children social cognition: the ability to think in a social context and apply skills relevant to the situation.

Through his "Pyramid of Success" program, attendees will learn:

- The foundation of social learning challenges
- Methods to improve social cognitive skills
- Tools for fostering independence
- How to help children adapt in various social settings
- When to seek professional help

Ryan Wexelblatt, MSS is the Founder and Director of the Sequoia Kids Program and Camp Sequoia, a traditional overnight camp program for children needing social skills development. He is a student of the Social Thinking® method and father of a child with social learning needs.

Help give your child the best chance to succeed by joining us on February 20th!

There is no charge to attend this program!
